Melton City Libraries changing library hours

Opening hours at Melton City Libraries will be changing from October 30.

Melton City Council will be altering and extending opening hours to allow more people to access the libraries.

Melton Library and Learning Hub will now be open at the earlier time of 8.30am each weekday morning, instead of the current 9am opening time.

The library will now close at 8pm, between Monday and Thursday.

Caroline Springs Library hours will also be extended on Saturdays, to open between 10am – 4pm.

City of Melton Mayor, Cr Sophie Ramsey, said the changes which would mean the library service and resources would be available to residents at more convenient times.

“These changes have come about after requests from our library users, as well as an internal review,” Cr Ramsey said.

“Opening earlier at Melton Library and Learning Hub will mean people have the option to duck into the library quickly before school or work, if they need to pick up a book, for example.

“Library users will be able to go to Caroline Springs Library later on Saturday afternoon, so it’s now an even better place catch up on some weekend studying, or a day of relaxing reading.”

A full list of library opening hours is attached.
